

Ways to Save With SEMCO's Energy Waste Reduction (EWR) Program

SEMCO's EWR program offers a variety of rebates and services to help customers use less and save more.

Residential

No-cost Home Energy Assessment (HEA)

Rather than focusing on a single problem like an old heating and water system, not enough insulation in the attic, or leaky windows, a no-cost Home Energy Assessment looks for opportunities throughout an entire home to improve performance.

Manufactured Homes Initiative (MHI)

Residential customers in manufactured homes with active SEMCO natural gas accounts may be eligible for no-cost upgrades. These upgrades are designed to increase a home's comfort and reduce overall energy costs.

Multifamily Energy Efficiency Program

SEMCO's Multifamily Energy Efficiency Program offers reduced-cost energy-efficient upgrades for multifamily properties. This program also offers no-cost direct installation of showerheads, faucet aerators, and pipe wrap, based on water heater fuel type.

Energy Efficiency Assistance Program

The SEMCO Energy Efficiency Assistance Program reduces financial barriers to energy efficiency and home comfort by providing customers with increased incentives for EWR upgrades. Participants must be SEMCO residential customers and meet the household income levels established (currently 200 percent of poverty level), which is based on the federal income guidelines published by the US Department of Energy Weatherization Program. Renters must have expressed consent from property owner to qualify for upgrades.

New construction rebates

Energy efficiency Home Energy Rating System (HERS) rated homes with a score of 56 or lower can receive a rebate for building energy efficient. Go to www.hersindex.com to learn more about HERS ratings
